Welcome to Orleans!

How is our town special? Let us count the ways. Great dining and shopping, exciting activities and attractions, artistic expressions and some of the most beautiful beaches and waterways on the Cape.

Whether you're with your family, friends or business associates, we've got you covered. In fact, make sure you read Truly Orleans cover to cover, to get the most out of your stay here.

Feel free to stop by and say hello. Let us know what we can do to make your experience in Orleans even better. We're at 44 Main Street year-round and 8 Eldredge Park Way from Memorial Day through Columbus Day.

Please note – we ask that you observe any mask protocols requested by local businesses. Thank you!

See you around town!

SHOPPING IS One of a Kind IN ORLEANS

BY LISA SIMUNDSON

There's nothing like shopping in Orleans. Fashion mavens, souvenir seekers, vinyl collectors, outdoor lovers and homebodies all meet their retail match here. But they don't do it alone. Our shops and boutiques are independently owned and sized for personal service, with the proprietor often on hand for custom consultation and assistance.

Sunset Leisure

So where to start flexing your purchasing power? Orleans offers a number of conveniently situated shopping hubs, including a walkable downtown area lined with retail and restaurant options; a stretch of shops on the way to Nauset Beach in East Orleans; and routes 6A and 28, a browser's nirvana of clothing shops, galleries, gift emporiums and stores dedicated to everything from fishing and birds to leather and liquors.

Main Street Smarts

Shopping, sightseeing and dining meet in Orleans' downtown retail district, where fashion is showcased at places like Ragg Time, Savvy on Main, Vintage in Vogue and Blake & Co.

Guys, your best look is waiting at Watson's Men's Store while the jewelry to accessorize any new look for men and women is next door at Stephen Gallant Jewelers.

Keep your bookshelves well stocked or pick up a book for the

ORLEANS CHAMBER Take care.

Around the corner is Main Street Square, a tucked-away enclave of galleries, eateries and specialty retailers like Oceana, where much of the merchandise – jewelry, home accents and accessories – is made by local artists and artisans.

More fashion finds await at Local Colour Resale Boutique, catering to teens and women of all ages and sizes and set just behind Main Street on Cove Road.

Across the street is Left Bank Gallery, whose eclectic collection of canvases and functional but artistic wares reflects the idea that art should be integrated into the home.

Get Your Kicks on Route 6A

Hunting for essentials? Slicing through town toward Eastham, Route 6A starts and ends with two major shopping centers – Skaket Corners and Cranberry Cove Plaza, home to Stop & Shop and TJ Maxx.

Nearby, Goose Hummock continues its long tradition (founded in 1946 as the first sporting goods store on the Outer Cape) of outfitting

ART DIRECTIONS IN ORLEANS

Kent's Point Walkers, Andrea Petitto,
Addison Art Gallery

BY LISA SIMUNDSON

Orleans may be beautiful by nature, but local artists also do their part to beautify the environment. In addition to outdoor installations in season and other al fresco art happenings (see our event calendar), the town is home to a variety of fine art galleries, many within walking distance of one another. Whether you're planning to browse, buy or both, the galleries of Orleans offer a unique perspective on your experience in Cape Cod.

Inspiring Orleans

Orleans has something for everyone, and artists from this region, as well as states and even countries away, can be found working in every corner. The spots that countless visitors and residents savor spur artists to create onsite, as well as to create more detailed pieces back in their studios.

According to Sharon McGauley, whose work sells internationally, "Orleans is an incredibly inspiring place to paint. From the ponds with indefatigable swimmers and goggle-eyed kids attached to floats, to Skaket Beach and its gorgeous colors and shapes ever-changing with the tides, to oceanside dunes and dramatic sunsets, to distinctive architecture, I find this place endlessly captivating."

Cash or Credit, Andrea Petitto, Addison Art Gallery

Sunlit Haven, Jonathan McPhillips, Addison Art Gallery

Much praise stems from the Cape's unique light. "Orleans' geography and atmosphere enhance the beautiful light of Cape Cod. Perhaps it is the power of the ocean so near the tranquility of the bay and ponds. The air is often charged with a magic mist that draws one to paint. Truly, I have had some of the most enthralling visual experiences in Orleans," says master artist Jonathan McPhillips.

Artists are also inspired by Orleans' residents and visitors, along with their four-legged friends. Andrea Petitto finds subjects at the Orleans Farmers Market where the activity makes people-watching particularly picturesque, and at Kent's Point with its woodland trails, beaches and community of dog walkers strolling and frolicking at all times of day.

As you explore Orleans' many galleries, you are likely to see favorite places along with locations that are new to you, perhaps inspiring you to paint, to write, to discover some aspects of Orleans to just enjoy.

MEET ME IN ORLEANS

destination for groups*

BY LISA SIMUNDSON

Orleans is a great place to live and visit. But it's also an ideal spot for group gatherings, whether conferences, association meetings or private events.

"Orleans is more of a hidden gem and has great offerings for recreation, off-site activities and group dining," notes Jennifer Allard, owner of Mainsail Events, a local destination management company. "We don't have your conventional meeting rooms, like banquet halls or hotel ballrooms, but that appeals to a lot of groups as well. If you select the Cape or Orleans as your destination, you're most likely looking for that hidden gem and not a ballroom," she adds.

"Orleans is more of a hidden gem and has great offerings for recreation, off-site activities and group dining."

Major meeting planners agree. "The Cape, including Orleans, provides a unique backdrop for every meeting with all the nearby beaches and the wide variety of off-site theme opportunities to surprise and delight your attendees," says Cezanne Macary, manager of global accounts for Danvers-based HelmsBriscoe. "The Cape to me is a home away from home, allowing me to relax and fully engage in its beauty."

In any event, Orleans makes gathering on the Cape extra special. Following are just some of the "hidden gems" that will help you nail a memorable occasion in the Elbow of the Cape, Orleans.

The Old Firehouse Community Center

Set on Main Street in the heart of downtown Orleans and offering nearly 800 square feet of event space, the Community Center has a busy rental schedule including local associations and clubs, exhibiting artists, school programs and a variety of classes. In addition, the building fronts a charming pocket park offering overflow space, and is within walking distance of local restaurants, several featuring private areas for groups. orleansculturaldistrict.org/old-firehouse-community-center

The National Register-listed Meetinghouse

Hurd Chapel

Centers for Culture and History in Orleans (CHO)

CHO's mission is to serve as community gathering places for sharing history and culture, and its function spaces bring a sense of heritage and discovery to any event. Set on a leafy campus in East Orleans, with Nauset Beach minutes away, facilities include the National Register-listed Meetinghouse, offering a main floor area with stage seating up to 80 people, auditorium-style. Meanwhile, the recently restored Hurd Chapel includes about 560 square feet seating up to 20 in an intimate setting of polished wood and period accents. Outdoors, a level grass plaza (which can be tented) can host up to 100.

"We are booking various area nonprofits, musicians, guest speakers, artists and private events," notes Jay Stradal, board chair. "After recent improvements totaling $1.2 million, our buildings are fully functional year-round, air-conditioned, ADA-compliant and offer considerable flexibility to meet varying client needs."

DESTINATION, MANAGED

Jennifer Allard, owner of the destination management company Mainsail Events, answers our questions about the Cape and Orleans as premier spots for meetings, associations and group events of all kinds. mainsailevents.com

Are you seeing interest in Orleans and the Cape as a good choice for group travel?

The Cape as a whole is a great location for meetings and associations. We're a short drive from Boston and Rhode Island and there's a huge tech sector in Metro North and West of Boston, making the Cape an easily accessible location with that special destination feel.

What types of groups are you booking?

I'm booking clubs, associations and smaller meetings for executives. Meetings are definitely coming back, but it's been a slow start. Some come over the bridge and some fly into Hyannis. Cape Air out of Logan is a great option for those wanting to cut down or avoid the drive from Boston.

How would you rate the meeting space and group dining in Orleans?

There's some really creative meeting space in the area, and group dining is wonderful in Orleans. Whether you're looking for a classic, casual seafood night or fine dining, we have that and everything in between.

Northwest Schoolhouse

Informally known as Odd Fellows Hall, this former 1830s schoolhouse is literally one-of-a-kind in Orleans.

"We're the only schoolhouse from that time that's still standing," says Bill Wordell, president of the nonprofit Northwest Schoolhouse, Inc. "We rent mostly to local groups but would certainly welcome groups from off-Cape."

Event space includes a

1,000-square-foot main hall along with expansive lawn space.

"We used to be the big meeting place for the town, and we'd like to see more events come here," Wordell says. northwestschoolhouse.org

Orleans Waterfront Inn

This iconic property boasts historical charm and a dream location on Town Cove next door to the 1700s-era Jonathan Young Windmill, yet it is completely up to date when it comes to group space: an outdoor deck hosting up to 150; a function room off the deck for up to 100; and a formal dining room that can handle up to 100.

"We have hosted many national corporations in the past," says owner Ed Maas. "We have just renovated the hotel as well." orleansinn.com

The Cove Motel

One of the few waterfront properties in Orleans, The Cove lives up to its name by overlooking scenic Town Cove, with complimentary WiFi throughout the property, a gazebo by the water, an outdoor fire pit where groups can relax together after hours, and a small indoor conference room. thecoveorleans.com

Besides your amazing photo booth, can you give us some examples of the team-building and corporate social responsibility activities you've coordinated?

I've done scavenger hunts, beer and wine tastings, cooking classes, beach Olympics and beach volleyball tournaments, a "Chopped"-style cooking competition, group tours of the area... the list goes on. There are so many creative things that can be done. We really are in a special location.

Federated Church of Orleans

Open to local clubs, associations and religious organizations, the Federated Church of Orleans offers three private spaces for group events, including a Fellowship Room that can host 25 people with tables, and a vestry hosting up to 86. The sanctuary with audio-visual capabilities can accommodate up to 268. Call for availability. 508-255-3060

This sailing center set against a scenic bay in Harwich offers an indoor classroom holding from about 30 to 40 people, available for rent during the off-season. pbcbb.cc

Table Talk

Dining can be a great bonding experience for a group. Good food, good conversation – the ideas start flowing. A number of eateries in Orleans offer private areas or separate rooms for groups, including the Barley Neck, The Beacon Room and Hog Island Beer Co.

In downtown Orleans, restaurants are steps away from one another, creating the ideal setting for a dine-around or progressive dinner.

TRUE BLUE

The Cape's Economy Sails On

BY LISA SIMUNDSON

No matter how many industries come down the pike, and no matter how many visitors come over the bridge, Cape Cod's economy will always be blue.

Defined as the sustainable use of ocean resources for economic growth and jobs while maintaining the ocean's health, the "Blue Economy" encompasses everything from fisheries and maritime transport to waste management and yes, tourism.

Cape Cod ticks every box, and one glance at a map will tell you why: This slim peninsula juts between two major bodies of water – the Atlantic Ocean and Cape Cod Bay – for just 65 miles at its longest and between one and 20 miles at its widest. As long a·qua·cul·ture n. the cultivation of aquatic animals – including fish, crustaceans and mollusks – is a strong enterprise on the Cape, with aquatic “nurseries” located in numerous places along the coast, including Pleasant Bay Community Boating. pbcbb.cc as people, or wildlife, for that matter, have lived here they have relied on the surrounding waters and inland waterways for life and livelihood.

“We’ve had a Blue Economy before the term even existed,” says lifelong Cape resident Bill Amaru, a commercial fisherman and chairman of the Orleans Shellfish and Waterways Committee. “Cape Codders have always prized our coastal health.”

Maintaining that coastal health has been a priority since President John F. Kennedy established Cape Cod National Seashore in 1961, preserving land that otherwise might have made way for more homes and hotels. With preservation the defining thread, the commercial and residential areas of Cape Cod are woven around conservation lands, state parks, lakes and ponds while keeping a careful distance from the fragile coastline.

As Amaru puts it, “if you want to have a Blue Economy, you have to have a green environment.”

Fish Stories

Though no longer the dominant industry it was back in the days of whaling, the Cape’s primary maritime industry – commercial fishing – remains robust.

According to a recent port study provided by the Cape Cod

Dayboats may embark on trips anywhere from half a day to 36 hours, depending on the fishery and time of year.

Dayboat scallops are the highest quality and are referred to as “dry” as they are not soaked in any solution.

Skates have 100 percent utilization – filets come from the wings while the middle, or the “rack” is used for lobster bait.

Some species, including conch, surf clams and other shellfish, require culling to keep only those of legal size.

works of art reflect the Cape's fishing culture.

"Fishing is the fabric of our history as Cape 'Cod' and it is woven into our future," notes Stephanie Sykes, program and outreach coordinator for the Alliance. "We may have shifted from the primary species of cod to lesser known fish like skate, but fishing remains a primary economic contributor to the local and regional economy. Fishermen are strong and adaptable... they will pivot with the weather, the season and the shifting stocks." capecodfishermen.org

Meanwhile, near-shore shellfish resources support recreational fisheries, directly generating more than $43 million annually from commercial wild harvest and aquaculture production.

Indeed, the Cape enjoys a recreational and commercial operations combo platter, as scores of professional boat captains offer fishing and boating charters that ply the sparkling waters surrounding the peninsula and by extension, increasing awareness of the region's coastal treasures. But as the image of recreational boating may add to the Cape's desirability as a destination, commercial enterprises remain the backbone of economic viability, Sykes says.

"While the tourist and charter industries are very visible to the public, a lot of fishermen are fishing daily, out of the public eye," she says.

Schools of Thought

Local initiatives to maintain and strengthen the Blue Economy include maritime education via organizations like Pleasant Bay Community Boating, which offers classes for all ages along with sailing and science youth camps.

“As a marine science center, we provide a hands-on curriculum and adventures for our program participants,” notes Executive Director Mike Trovato. “We also make our floating classroom, The Friend, accessible to local science classes from the elementary through high school levels.” pbcb.cc

Meanwhile, the Fishermen’s Alliance recently played a major role in advocating for the Young Fishermen’s Development Act (YFDA), which will provide funding through the NOAA Sea Grant for training, education, outreach and technical assistance initiatives for young fishermen. A pilot training program on Cape Cod also has been established and is being more fully developed. seagrant.noaa.gov/youngfishermen

Closer to home, Orleans has seen more young people joining the commercial fishing industry, Sykes reports.

“Orleans is seeing younger fishermen who are involved

With an eye on the future and an appreciation for the past, Cape Cod's commercial fishing industry, and by extension the entire Blue Economy, is poised for growth and the kind of development many Cape Codders welcome.

"Recruiting, training and retaining the next generation is vital to maintain sustainable sourcing of domestic fish," says Sykes. 🌊

Orleans is home to 13 established conservation areas, scattered across town and easy to reach. Download a map from the Orleans Conservation Trust (OCT): orleansconservationtrust.org

Take a Walk through ORLEANS CONSERVATION LANDS

Open Spaces in Unexpected Places

Trails vary in length and terrain, ranging from serious hikes to laid-back strolls

Conservation lands are crisscrossed by trails leading to wooded areas and scenic ponds and waterways

Look out for wildlife sightings and discover a host of ecological communities.

Learn about history, botany and ecology on OCT's guided walks. All are free and open to the public.

In addition, OCT's free lecture series offers informative and entertaining presentations on a range of conservation-related topics.

TOWN OF ORLEANS

orleanscapecod.org

508-255-1386

Opened in 1913, historic Eldredge Park is home base for the Orleans Firebirds, one of 10 members of the Cape Cod Baseball League.

Admission to games is free and there is no reserved seating. You can arrive early since the field is open at all times. The team suggests you bring a blanket, beach chair and a sweatshirt or jacket to games.

Josh Pahigian, author of 101 Baseball Places to See Before You Strike Out, singled out Eldredge Park as one of his favorite Cape Cod Baseball League parks to watch a summer game, and the CCBL was named the 6th best baseball attraction in America on his list.
